Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 27 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Cloud increasing overnight, patchy rain likely Peak District later.

This Evening and Tonight:
Dry with clear spells at first with the odd fog patch forming in rural areas inland. However, cloud increasing from the west later in the night, perhaps giving some patchy rain for the western Peak District by daybreak. Minimum temperature 8 deg C (46 deg F).

Friday:
Generally rather cloudy with isolated showers likely for the Peak District, otherwise generally dry perhaps with some brightness developing in the east later. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cloudy at first on Saturday, improving to give a largely warm, locally very warm, dry and sunny weekend. Cloudier, cooler at times near the coast, with some patchy mist.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.